"Michelle's history and past experience as a true technology leader speaks for itself," said John Riccitiello, President and Chief Executive Officer, Unity. "We are so excited to have her join our Board where she can lend her deep expertise and breadth of knowledge to Unity's upward growth trajectory."

"Throughout my career I've been drawn to companies that are disruptive in nature but also embody the spirit of creation and I believe Unity is one of those companies," said Lee. "I am thrilled to be joining Unity's distinguished Board of Directors and to bring my experience from the top levels of technology, law, business and government to their organization at this pivotal moment where they are forging new ground into digital twin, Web3, tools for the creation of augmented and virtual reality applications, and other next generation technologies."

Most recently, Lee served as Vice President, Machine Learning Solutions Lab and Computer Vision at Amazon.com and was the Herman Phleger Visiting Professor at Stanford University. From 2012 to 2017, she served in a series of leadership roles at the United States Patent and Trademark Office, including most recently the Under Secretary of Commerce for Intellectual Property and Director of the USPTO. Lee has also held leadership positions at Google, Fenwick & West, LLP, a law firm, as well as board roles at Alarm.com and MIT Corporation.
