Also featured are Modine's unit heater and infrared heater lines.

"We're partnering with Danko Mechanical Sales to make this happen in Tucson," said Kimberly Raduenz, marketing communications manager for Modine. "We want to offer as many specifying engineers and contractors in the area a chance to see what the future of HVAC technology holds and how they can apply it to better serve their customers."

In addition to the product showcase, professional development seminars will be provided for CEU credits with the following courses:

"It's important that we not only showcase the latest in HVAC technology but also give attendees a chance to see and touch our products in person," said Raduenz.
