National Consumer Protection Week is March 1-7

CAYCE, S.C. (March 2, 2026) — This National Consumer Protection Week, Dominion Energy is reminding customers how to spot a utility scam and keep their personal information safe.

Scammers will often pose as utility company representatives and use urgent or threatening language to pressure customers into making payments or providing personal information. These scams can happen by phone, through text messages and email or in person.

“Scam calls are designed to feel urgent and intimidating,” said Cristina Freeman, general manager of customer service at Dominion Energy South Carolina. “If someone is pushing you to pay immediately or threatening you, that’s a sign to stop and confirm your account through trusted company resources like our website or mobile app.”

Dominion Energy will never:

- Threaten immediate disconnection if you do not pay on the spot.
- Demand payment by phone or require a wire transfer, money order, prepaid card or gift card.
- Ask for payment in person.

What customers should do to protect themselves:

- Hang up. Do not provide account, payment or any other personal or financial information.
- Use caution. Do not respond to suspicious emails or text messages. Do not click on links or attachments prompting energy bill payment before confirming the message is legitimate.
- Verify. Scammers do not typically know the customer’s account balance. Customers can verify their account balance and payment due date online or on the Dominion Energy mobile app.

Customers should download the Dominion Energy app for the most secure method to check balance information, make bill payments, verify past payments, start or stop service and even request a payment arrangement if needed.
