"We're absolutely thrilled to see Laura recognized for her many years of outstanding work," said HilltopSecurities Vice Chairman and Head of Public

Finance David Medanich, who nominated Alexander for the award. "Laura is a motivated, highly accomplished leader who is trusted and respected within our organization and by our clients."

The Dallas Business Journal's 12th annual Women in Business Awards honors North Texas' most influential business women. Alexander was nominated for her leadership, professional accomplishments and community service. As a financial advisor to public-sector clients and nonprofits, Alexander and the firm offer a wide range of services, including advising municipalities, counties, water districts, universities, school districts, and airport authorities on bond issuances to fund capital improvement projects. Since 2014, Alexander led or served on teams handling 164 transactions totaling more than $8.8 billion.

"I'm honored to be recognized by the Dallas Business Journal for doing a job I love," said Alexander. "I work with an incredible, talented team. It's very rewarding to help organizations achieve their goals. I would encourage young people who have an interest in finance, and who also want to make a meaningful difference in their communities, to consider a career in public finance."

Alexander joined HilltopSecurities in 1996, after which she ascended to her current position as regional managing director of the firm's Fort Worth office and was appointed to the board of directors for HilltopSecurities. Alexander also serves as president of the board of trustees of Fort Worth Country Day (FWCD), a private college-preparatory school in Fort Worth.

Recipients of the Dallas Business Journal's Women in Business Awards will be recognized at an awards luncheon on August 21 at the Fairmont Dallas.
