The Science

Science Continues to Expand

- Three new human trials on nicotinamide riboside registered since prior update:¹
 - Haukeland University Hospital (December 2023)
 - The objective is to test whether NR is a neuroprotective therapy for atypical parkinsonism (APS).
 - This trial builds on the promising outcomes of previous NAD-replenishment trials which demonstrated NR's dose-dependent anti-Parkinson's effect and its potential as a neuroprotective therapy.
 - 330 participants will receive 3000 mg NR daily for 78 weeks.
 - Haukeland University Hospital (January 2024)
 - The objective is to investigate the potential of NR to slow down functional decline in the elderly frail population by exploring its effects on brain and body metabolism.
 - This study aims to extend the institution's research on NR's effectiveness beyond Parkinson's disease to elderly, frail individuals without neurodegenerative disorders.
 - 100 participants will receive 2000 mg NR daily for one year.
 - University of South Alabama (January 2024)
 - The objective is to explore whether there is a harmful interaction between acetaminophen and stressors similar to those experienced in space. Both can cause oxidative stress and release toxins throughout the body, potentially disrupting cellular function in various tissues.
 - The investigators aim to see if NR can mitigate some of these negative effects by reducing the production of toxins when acetaminophen is taken.
 - 40 participants will receive a single dose of 1000 mg Tylenol® with or without 250 mg NR.
- Eight new research studies were signed through ChromaDex External Research Program (CERP).²

(1) There are 91 ongoing, completed, and published clinical studies currently registered on clinicaltrials.gov to investigate the pharmacokinetics and therapeutic effects of NR alone or in combination with other ingredients. 72 of these use NR only. Clinicaltrials.gov also includes two niacin studies and one device monitoring registry for a total of 94 under the search term "nicotinamide riboside." (As of February 9, 2024)
(2) 275+ research collaborations for Niagen® signed with research institutes and universities around the world. More than 90% of the studies are investigator-initiated and were developed to support applications for or receipt of third-party funding. The studies may not have been initiated if investigators were unable to secure funding.

Recent Peer-Reviewed Clinical Publications

- GeroScience – Orr et al., 2023 – “A Randomized Placebo-Controlled Trial of Nicotinamide Riboside in Older Adults with Mild Cognitive Impairment” – October 2023
 - The study assessed the safety and efficacy of NR supplementation on cognition, brain volume and functioning, and physical function in primarily Hispanic older adults with mild cognitive impairment (MCI).
 - NR resulted in a 139% increase in blood NAD⁺ and its associated metabolites.
 - NR-treated subjects showed decreased cerebral blood flow, particularly in the default mode network (DMN), suggesting less degeneration in brain regions that typically require higher blood flow.
 - Cognitive function measures remained stable in both NR and placebo groups throughout the study.
 - Global methylation analyses trended towards a modest NR-associated increase in DNA methylation.
 - This is the first study to directly investigate the safety profile of NR on cognition and brain function in older adults with MCI.
- Nature Communications – Berven et al., 2023 – “NR-SAFE: A Randomized, Double-Blind Safety Trial of High Dose Nicotinamide Riboside in Parkinson’s Disease” – November 2023
 - The study examined the safety of high-dose NR supplementation, as well as assessed its short-term tolerability and impact on NAD⁺ and clinical severity in patients with Parkinson’s Disease (PD).
 - High-dose NR supplementation was safe and well-tolerated with no related adverse events.
 - NR significantly increased NAD⁺ levels and modified the NAD metabolome.
 - High-dose NR did not alter whole blood homocysteine, or other major methyl donor groups, suggesting no impact on methyl donor group pool.
 - NR was associated with improved clinical symptoms of PD, as measured by the Movement Disorder Society Unified Parkinson’s Disease Rating Scale (MDS-UPDRS), suggesting augmenting NAD⁺ levels may have a symptomatic anti-Parkinson’s effect.
 - This is the first study to investigate the safety of high-dose NR at 3000 mg/day.
