The DNA of a Specialty Insurance Powerhouse

Arch's playbook delivers superior results with lower volatility. Our operating principles are:

FOCUS ON SPECIALTY INSURANCE BUSINESS

- We focus on commercial lines where our underwriting expertise enhances risk selection and returns.
- Examples of specialty lines include:
 - Insurance: Professional and Excess and Surplus (E&S), are more difficult and require deeper expertise to generate adequate, through-the-cycle returns.
 - Reinsurance: Sophisticated modeling and portfolio construction can mitigate volatile property catastrophe returns.
 - Mortgage: Innovative pricing and risk models drive performance.

MANAGE THE CYCLE

- Our executive and underwriting teams are compensated on long-term profitability, not just generating new premium.
- A diversified platform ensures we can allocate our capital to the most deserving opportunities.
- Simple in concept, difficult to execute. Successful insurers write more business when opportunities are good and less when conditions deteriorate.

EFFECTIVELY ALLOCATE CAPITAL

- We allocate capital to the lines of business with the best relative opportunity for risk-adjusted returns.
- When excess capital exists, we deploy according to the below priorities:
 1. Reinvest into our business.
 2. Reduce financial leverage.
 3. Return to shareholders via buybacks or dividends.

Consistently Superior Risk-Adjusted Returns with Less Volatility

Non-GAAP Financial Measures: Tangible shareholders' equity represents total shareholders' equity, which includes non-cumulative preferred shares, less goodwill and intangible assets (excluding amounts attributable to non-controlling interests). We believe that tangible shareholders' equity is useful to investors because it provides a more accurate measure of the realizable value of shareholders' equity. The following table provides a reconciliation of total shareholders' equity to tangible shareholders' equity:
