Old National Bank Financial Empowerment Director Ben Joergens discusses serving unbanked Americans on the ABA Banking Journal podcast

2020-10-29

Old National Bank Financial Empowerment Director Ben Joergens discusses the Old National commitment to serving unbanked Americans on the American Bankers Association ABA Banking Journal Podcast for October 2020.

Listen to ABA Banking Journal podcast

Old National helped launch the third Bank On program in the U.S. back in 2008, which focuses on helping unbanked Americans gain access to mainstream financial services. In 2016, Old National created the ONB EZ Access Account, a Bank On-certified account. Bank On-certified accounts are safe, affordable transaction accounts designed for those who might not otherwise have access to a checking account.

While FDIC statistics on unbanked Americans show improvement between 2017 and 2019, some demographic categories still face obstacles in accessing financial services. In this podcast, Ben also talks about the importance of financial education, and the strong role it plays at Old National, when assisting unbanked individuals.
