Old National responds to urgent COVID-19 need with $1.2 million commitment joining #GivingTuesdayNow

2020-05-05

Evansville, Ind. – Old National Bank is proud to be a part of #GivingTuesdayNow, a global day of giving and unity taking place today, May 5, to respond to the unprecedented need caused by COVID-19.

As a community-focused financial institution, Old National has a long history of working to support and fund many community causes. Due to COVID-19, the needs are more critical than ever. To help serve its communities during this time, Old National has allotted $1.2 million toward COVID-19 relief. This includes:

- $600,000 in funding focused on meeting the immediate needs in local communities, with an emphasis on low-to-moderate income communities.
- $600,000 in Old National Bank Foundation grant funding that will focus on longer-term restorative and transformational needs within local communities.

“The team at Old National is proud to join with people around the world in raising awareness and support for organizations who are helping communities in this urgent time of need,” said Jim Ryan, Chairman and CEO. “These organizations are providing such valuable services, and we are pleased to partner with them and assist those who need it most.”
